Wingate University Students to Stage Free Performance of 'Junie B. Jones is Not a Crook'

Wingate University's Department of Communication will present the Allison Gregory play, "Junie B. Jones is Not a Crook," based off of the best-selling children's books by Barbara Park.

"Lots of college students remember Junie B. Jones fondly," said Barbara Pann, the department's interim chair and director of the play. "This is a great opportunity for students and the public to laugh and enjoy a performance bringing Junie B. to life."

The storyline includes stolen furry mittens, a pen of many colors and an examination of the "finders keepers, losers weepers" adage. There's also a new boy in kindergarten who attracts the eye of Grace and Lucille as well as Junie. The production will involve nearly 20 Wingate students, including Darius Johnson, who is serving as assistant director. Adjunct professor Jeffrey Childs has volunteered to assist with the technical aspects of the play, and assistant professor Kangming Ma has agreed to film the shows.

In addition to the two public events, set for 7 p.m. on April 21 and 2 p.m. on April 22, Pann and her crew have invited classes from several area elementary schools to come to the University for private shows.

"Grade-school children are the embodiments of dramatism. We now have to make sure we are going over the top," Johnson said.

"I can't wait to hear the giggles of those children," Pann added.

The public shows, which will run between 55 and 65 minutes, will be held in Austin Auditorium. Admission is free but tickets are required and can be reserved at wingate.edu/life-at-wingate/events/tickets.

Applications Open for the Got to Be NC Festival's Young Farmer of the Day Program

The Got to Be NC Festival will honor farmers aged 18-40 through the Young Farmer of the Day program. The program, sponsored by the Farm Credit Associations of North Carolina, celebrates our state's agricultural future and three young farmers who are behind our state's $92.9 billion agriculture and agribusiness industry.

The individuals recognized as Young Farmer of the Day honorees will be awarded a Got to Be NC prize pack, invited to ride in the Got to Be NC Festival Tractor Parade and celebrated both online and at the festival. Families will be chosen by both nomination and application. Applications can be found at: www.gottobencfestival.com. Deadline to apply is April 26.

"Developing our next generation of farmers is one of the most critical opportunities we have in agriculture today. Their ideas, adaptability to new technologies and commitment to developing efficient best practices for their farms will advance agriculture in ways we haven't even dreamed of yet," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. "They are out there every day working hard to grow the food, fiber and fuel we need, and we look forward to recognizing their efforts at the Got to Be NC Festival in May."

The Farm Credit Associations of North Carolina is the leading provider of credit to farmers in the state of North Carolina. The member-owned financial cooperative consists of AgCarolina Farm Credit and Ag-South Farm Credit. Loans are made to finance land, homes, farm buildings, operating expenses, livestock and equipment, as well as other purposes. Appraisal services and leasing programs are also available through the Farm Credit Associations of N.C.

The Got to Be NC Festival takes place May 19-21 at the North Carolina State Fairgrounds in Raleigh and highlights only the best in North Carolina agriculture. Enjoy carnival games and rides, local music, food, animal and agricultural displays, antique tractors and more with free gate admission and parking. For information visit: gottobencfestival.com.
