daughter of the late J. L. Morgan, Sr. and the late Bertha Trexler Morgan. She grew up in Morven, NC until she and two of her sisters moved to the "big city" of Charlotte in the early 1950's.

She was a woman before her time, as she bought a house as a single woman in 1955. Sara married four years later, and lived there with her husband Howard Short, mother Bertha Morgan, brother J. L. "Buck" Morgan and daughter Karen. She later moved with her daughter to St. Joseph, MI in 1999, and then to Jensen Beach, FL in 2003.

Sara was a caregiver, always wanting to help others. She was a sweet, soft spoken woman who loved the Lord. Even in the later years with dementia, her love for Jesus never ceased. She was always trying to go home to her mother and father or at times to her husband, and now she is in Heaven with them all.

Surviving are her daughter Karen Hammond (Dale) of Jensen Beach, FL: sisters, Mary

'Ask An Expert' Resource Available

Anson County residents now have the expertise of all of the nation's land-grant universities at their fingertips, thanks to a web tool offered by the Anson County Center of NC Cooperative Extension. With this Extension resource, called Ask an Expert, county residents can submit questions, via the Anson County Extension website (anson.ces.ncsu.edu), at any time of day or night. They can get timely answers by email from Extension faculty from NC State University, NC A&T State University, and other land-grant institutions.

For over a century, Cooperative Extension has been providing unbiased, research-based information on a wide range of topics. Now, Ask an Expert allows you to access that information with greater convenience.

Using a short online form, residents can submit questions about agriculture and food, health and nutrition, lawn and garden, youth development and 4-H, and a host of other topics.

To access Ask an Expert, anyone can visit the Anson County Extension website at anson.ces.ncsu.edu and click the Ask an Expert links at the top right or on the left panel of each page. Simply enter questions and email addresses in the spaces provided, and submit them. Questions will be directed to Extension faculty members who have the appropriate expertise to provide accurate and timely responses. Users also can attach photos to their questions.

The Ask an Expert resource also is available at extension.org, a nationwide web site that offers an interactive learning environment. The site delivers the best, most researched knowledge from the smartest landgrant university minds across America. The site connects knowledge consumers with knowledge providers. The extension.org site also offers a searchable database of answers provided in response to questions submitted by other users.

Of course, residents who need information still are welcome to call or visit the Anson County Extension center during business hours. The online resource just adds another avenue to available information and provides convenient access to Extension experts.

tension extends to county residents the educational resources of NC State University and NC A&T State University. Both universities commit themselves to positive action to secure equal opportunity regardless of race, color, creed, national origin, religion, sex, age, or disability. In addition, the two Universities welcome all persons without regard to sexual orientation.

The poverty guidelines are sometimes loosely referred to as the "federal poverty level" (FPL), but that phrase is ambiguous and should be avoided, especially in situations (e.g., legislative or administrative) where precision is important.
