Success through acceptance

At first, Earl Sturdivant didn't want to attend Anson County Early College on South Piedmont Community College's L.L. Polk Campus.

"I didn't want to come here," he said. "I didn't know anything about Early College."

Sturdivant to love it, however, and in 2010 graduated with a high school diploma and an Associate in Arts degree. He enrolled at N.C. State University in the fall and is pursuing a degree in construction engineering. "I'm liking State pretty well, though it's very challenging," he said.

Despite his early reluctance, Sturdivant quickly began to enjoy his time at Anson County Early College. "After a few weeks, I began to love it," he said. "I think it's a really good option for a middle school student who wants to go to a four-year school."

SPCC hosts early colleges on both the Monroe and Polkton campuses.
