Arts Council Puts Spotlight On Joe Blocker

This is a release from the Anson County Arts Council: Ordained Baptist minister and former police officer, Joe Blocker is also a master of sound design. After being an Ansonia theatre goer, Joe offered his services up to help us solve our sound issues. Joe came on board as our sound technician, and we are so fortunate to have him as this part of our team. Joe recently lost his dear wife Joyce this past month, and our thoughts and prayers go out to him and his entire family. We are so thankful to have Joe as a vital member of our award winning team.

Joe, we love you very much, and we are so proud to have you as a part of our theatre family. The spotlight is on you, Joe!
