Making “Decomposer Pudding” at Wadesboro Primary School

Students learn about ecosystems with a sweet experiment

During summer reading camp, Ms. Gibson’s third graders explored the fascinating world of ecosystems. In the forest ecosystem, earthworms act as decomposers, feeding on dead organic matter such as leaves. To wrap up the unit, the students demonstrated their knowledge in a fun and memorable way by making “Decomposer Pudding,” using Oreo cookie crumbs as soil and gummy earthworms as the decomposers. The activity was both educational and delicious, and the students loved every bite.
