Covid Update for Anson County

According to the latest information posted by the Anson County Health Department on Wednesday, August 17 there were 7,448 total Covid-19 cases to that point, with 58 active cases and 99 deaths. The number of active cases was down significantly from 124 cases reported on August 10.

If you are positive or currently awaiting test results, please stay home. If you are experiencing symptoms, please get tested.

The Health Department stated, "The Covid Testing site on Morven Road is temporarily shut down due to changing vendors. We hope that it will be back up and running very soon. In the meantime, please note you can stop by the Health Department and pick up test kits to keep at home. If you aren't feeling well, you can send someone up here and we will send some to you.

We still offer Moderna vaccine on Thursdays (Walk-In). We are also offering N-95 masks and Rapid Covid tests here at Anson County Health Department. Stop in to pick one up."

Commissioner and NCACC Past President Frank Williams' 100 Counties Prepared presidential initiative.

"County governments perform a number of important functions, but the stakes are higher during an emergency," said NCACC Past President Frank Williams. "I commend every county commissioner and county official who completed this class for their willingness to strengthen their knowledge and skills of how to lead more effectively when it matters the most."

N.C. Director of Emergency Management Will Ray joined Past President Williams in signing certificates of completion for all attendees. Director Ray also provided a video keynote address, in which he stated, "thank you to Commissioner Williams and to the 100 Counties Prepared task force co-chairs and members for the important work done on this critical initiative. This training course is a vital piece to continuing the sustainment and improvement of emergency preparedness across our state. We know that we will continue to have events and incidents that impact North Carolina that will be across all hazards, and we will need counties' continued partnership, standing shoulder-to-shoulder together as we continue to serve our communities."

Williams announced the 100 Counties Prepared initiative upon being sworn in as NCACC President at the NCACC annual conference in 2021 and appointed a statewide task force shortly thereafter. The initiative was born out of Williams' experience serving as Chair of the Brunswick County Board of Commissioners during Hurricanes Florence, Dorian, and Isaias, through which he observed a lack of emergency preparedness training suitable for elected officials. The 100 Counties Prepared training was created to fill that void by equipping elected officials with the tools, resources and information needed to lead effectively during emergencies such as natural disasters, public health crises, and other critical incident situations.

"Through my experience serving as Chair of the Brunswick County Board of Commissioners during multiple hurricanes, including Florence, I observed that our staff was well trained, but there was little to no emergency preparedness training suitable for elected officials," said Williams. "Thanks to the hard work of our task force and NCACC staff and the commitment of the county officials who completed our first class, we have taken a major step toward filling that void. I'm also grateful to the steadfast support of N.C. Emergency Management Director Will Ray throughout this process, and we look forward to a continued partnership."

- The full day of training included:
- A high-level overview of the complex myriad of legal terminology, roles, and responsibilities related to emergency preparedness and management presented by Kate Van Tol, N.C. Emergency Management Legal Fellow.
  - A discussion about the proper role of commissioners in the emergency management process led by Brunswick County Commissioner Randy Thompson and Washington County Commissioner Ann Keyes, both of whom are retired county-level emergency managers.
  - A session on crisis communication led by Julie Parker of Julie Parker Communications and Meagan Kascsak, Brunswick County's Director of Communications.
  - A panel discussion featuring former N.C. Emergency Management Director Mike Sprayberry and former FEMA Director Brock Long.

2021 Visitor Spending Increases in All 100 North Carolina Counties

Anson County saw 32.9% spending growth rate from 2020 to 2021

Recovery in visitor spending was felt statewide in 2021 with all 100 counties seeing increases, according to data released today by the North Carolina Department of Commerce. The preliminary findings reflect the economic impact of tourism on local economies across the state, and come from an annual study commissioned by Visit North Carolina, a unit of the Economic Development Partnership of North Carolina.

Here are the 2021 visitor numbers for Anson County (in millions): Lodging $4.26; Food & Beverage $7.45; Recreation $2.61; Retail $1.54; Transportation $5.21; Total Spending $21.07; Share of Statewide .1%; Spending Growth Rate 2020-2021 32.9%; Employment 135; Share of Statewide .1%; Labor Income $4.8; State Taxes $1.0; Local Taxes $0.7. The 2021 State & Local Tax Savings Per Resident of Anson County due to visitor spending was $76.08.

"The strong economic results for one of our most vital industries speak to the resilience of our local tourism partners and to the state's enduring appeal," said North Carolina Commerce Secretary Machel Baker Sanders. "We celebrate the qualities that make North Carolina an attractive destination and are inspired by the people who provide visitors to our state an outstanding travel experience."

The visitor spending study, commissioned by VisitNC and conducted by Tourism Economics in collaboration with the U.S. Travel Association, provides preliminary estimates of domestic and international traveler expenditures as well as employment, payroll income, and state and local tax revenues directly generated by these expenditures. The statistical model draws on detailed data from VisitNC as well as data derived from federal and state government sources, nationally known private and non-profit travel organizations, and other travel industry sources.

Key findings from the study:

- Strong recovery was seen statewide compared to 2020 with visitor spending across the state up 45 percent. Each of the state's 100 counties experienced increases in spending from 2020 to 2021.
- Mecklenburg County received $4.1 billion (up 46 percent) in traveler expenditures to lead all 100 counties. For the first time, Buncombe County ranked second with $2.6 billion (up 81 percent), followed by Wake County with $2.3 billion (up 40 percent), Dare County with $1.8 billion (up 30 percent) and Guilford County with $1.3 billion (up 52 percent) in visitor spending.
- Top percentage spending increases from 2020 were Gates County (up 83 percent), Buncombe County (up 81 percent), Beaufort County (up 71 percent), Moore County (up 70 percent) and Alexander County (up 68 percent).
- Seventy-five counties had 2021 spending that topped 2019's record sums. Four of these counties had spending up 50 percent or more from two years ago: Warren County (up 68 percent), Stokes County (up 66 percent), Madison County (up 59 percent) and Alexander County (up 57 percent).
- Mecklenburg County had the largest number of direct tourism employees (28,438), an increase of nearly 6 percent from 2020. Three other counties had more than 10,000 direct tourism employees: Wake (21,357, up 23 percent), Buncombe (18,278, up 31 percent) and Dare (12,295, up 4 percent).
- Top counties for percentage increases in tourism employment were Buncombe (up 31 percent), Gates (up 25 percent), Wake (up 23 percent), Cabarrus (up 21 percent) and Alexander (up 20 percent).

As previously reported, domestic travel statewide reached new heights in 2021, though international visitation lagged. The spending total of $28.9 billion fell about 1 percent below the record set in 2019. The sum represents a 45 percent increase from pandemic-stricken 2020.

"Just as we're gratified by the achievement statewide in 2021, the county-level report underscores the value of each destination," said Wit Tuttle, director of Visit NC. "This is where travelers experience the state, from its natural beauty to the character of our people. It's also the heart of the economic impact, the sustenance for thousands of businesses and local governments. We look forward to raising the arc even higher as we welcome more people to places they won't find anywhere else."

Anson Commissioner Jarvis T. Woodburn Completes Emergency Preparedness Training

Anson County Commissioner Jarvis T. Woodburn (pictured at left holding a certificate) completed the 100 Counties Prepared Emergency Preparedness Training for County Commissioners at the NC Association of County Commissioners' (NCACC) 115th Annual Conference in Cabarrus County on August 11.

Commissioner Woodburn was one of 61 county officials to complete the class, which was the culmination of Brunswick County presidential initiative.

"County governments perform a number of important functions, but the stakes are higher during an emergency," said NCACC Past President Frank Williams.
