Alzheimer's Association Adds New Topics to October Virtual Program Lineup

Special October topics include Living with Alzheimer's - For Late-Stage Caregivers and Dementia and the LGBT Experience

While the on-going coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic still threatens the health of millions in this country and around the world, it continues to create additional challenges for people living with Alzheimer's and all dementia, their families and caregivers, including 180,000 in North Carolina and their estimated 479,000 caregivers.

The Alzheimer's Association, Western Carolina Chapter and the Alzheimer's Association, Eastern North Carolina Chapter are continuing to offer free virtual education programs and online support groups to help all North Carolina caregivers and their families. Launched in May in response to the impact COVID-19 was having on those affected by dementia, the Alzheimer's Association now offers a number of education programs that can help those living with Alzheimer's and their families understand what to expect so they can be prepared to meet the changes ahead.

"From the health risks of COVID-19 to the social isolation caused by the pandemic, we serve a vulnerable population. We see it as our duty to ensure that all North Carolina caregivers have access to Alzheimer's Association resources, said Katherine L. Lambert, CEO of the Western Carolina Chapter. "The COVID-19 crisis continues to alter daily lives, but the needs of Alzheimer's caregivers persist. These online programs allow us to connect with caregivers and provide necessary information especially amid the on-going crisis.'

Two new topics being added in October include a two-part series "Living with Alzheimer's - For Late-Stage Caregivers" and "Dementia and the LGBT Experience" both of which are even more important in light of the COVID-19 pandemic as caregivers strive to care for individuals living with dementia at home or at a distance.

Living with Alzheimer's - For Late-Stage Caregivers In the late stage of Alzheimer's disease, caregiving typically involves new ways of connecting and interacting with the person with the disease. In this 2-part series, participants will hear from caregivers and professionals about resources, monitoring care and providing meaningful connection for the person with late-stage Alzheimer's and their families. Living with Alzheimer's - For Late-Stage Caregivers is being offered on October 14 and October 21. Participants are not required to attend both parts, but it is recommended.

Dementia and the LGBT Experience Learn about Alzheimer's, dementia and memory loss in the LGBT community during this brief community-focused listening/discussion session. This program will take a look at the importance of increasing resources and outreach to the aging LGBT population. It will explore the unique factors that put this group at potentially higher risk for developing dementia, and the resources that may be needed for them and their loved ones as they age. Dementia and the LGBT Experience is being offered on October 7.

- Other programs in October include:
- 10 Warning Signs of Alzheimer's
- Understanding Alzheimer's and Dementia
- COVID-19 & Caregiving
 Advancing the Science The Latest in Alzheimer's and Dementia Research,
- Understanding and Responding to Dementia- Related Behavior
- Effective Communication Strategies.

Door-to-Door Insurance Scams on the Rise

North Carolina Insurance Commissioner Mike Causey warns residents to be on alert for insurance scams. In the last few days, NCDOI has had reports of people going door-to-door claiming to be from the N.C. Department of Insurance. During the visit, the impersonator tells the resident, because they were between the ages 50 to 85, they had been selected to receive free health insurance that covers medical, vision, dental and life.

These residents report the false DOI representative also shows a letter on an iPad with their name and address that is similar to a letter from an insurance company advertising their Medicare Advantage plans.

NCDOI has also received reports that Medicare beneficiaries are getting calls saying their Medicare numbers have been suspended due to fraudulent activity. The caller then asks for sensitive, personal information.

"If someone is calling, claiming to be from Medicare and asking for your Social Security number or bank information, hang up, it's a scam," said Commissioner Causey. "First, Medicare won't call you. Second, Medicare will never ask for your Social Security number or bank information. Third, NCDOI representatives will never go door-to-door asking for personal information."

If someone is threatening to cancel Medicare or other insurance benefits if residents don't give information or money, report it to the Department's Seniors' Health Insurance Information Program (SHIIP) or the N.C. Senior Medicare Patrol at 1-855-408-1212. Residents can also contact their local law enforcement.
